Summer 2024

Jens Jensen, O.C. Simonds, and Today's Native Gardens

The late 1800s and early 1900s were a turning point in conservation and garden design, a response to increasing urbanization that laid the groundwork for today's ecologically based landscape design. Leading this bold new "Prairie Style" were Jens Jensen and O.C. Simonds, both of whose work continues to grace the Chicago region and beyond.

Jensen left a legacy of over 600 landscapes, many using native plants, including the Forest Preserve Districts of Cook County and Lake County, Indiana Dunes National Park, the Shakespeare Garden on the Evanston campus of Northwestern University, and Columbus Park in Chicago. Simonds's enduring influence includes Graceland Cemetery, Fort Sheridan, parts of Chicago's Lincoln Park, and Morton Arboretum.

Jensen scholar Dr. Bob Grese will explore the work of Jensen and Simonds and suggest ways their work can continue to inspire gardens and conservation efforts today. Dr. Grese is a professor emeritus in the School for Environment and Sustainability at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor and the former director of the university's Matthaei Botanical Gardens and Nichols Arboretum. He is an honorary member of the Garden Club of America and a past president of the Ann Arbor Chapter of the Wild Ones. Cosponsored by the Friends of the Green Bay Trail and the Glencoe Sustainability Task Force.

Meet the Staff

MATTHEW BYRD

Despite growing up on the North Side of Chicago, I had never spent much time in Glencoe or the North Shore generally before starting as an Adult Services Librarian here last October. To me, the North Shore was just the place where John Hughes movies were set. I have been delighted to find a welcoming, friendly and laid-back community that I am very happy to serve, at first as an Adult Services Librarian and now also as a Technology Librarian. Besides working with the world’s greatest library staff, my favorite part of this job has been the day-to-day interactions with our patrons, whether it’s solving a tech issue, finding a book they’re looking for, and just shooting the breeze. Prior to joining the library, I got a BA in History and English from the University of Iowa, an MLIS from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, and worked in Tech Support for Columbia College Chicago.

Outside the library, you can usually find me catching a film at one of Chicago’s many excellent independent movie houses (The Music Box, Siskel Center, Doc Films etc.), winning at bar trivia, watching the Bears lose, reading Wikipedia articles, or watching even more films in my apartment. If you ever want a film recommendation or just want to chat about a movie you’ve been enjoying, do not hesitate to drop by the reference desk and say hi!
